

galleryELL is pleased to present “element - progress,” a group exhibition at spool mfg., contemporary art space in the greater binghamton area. “element - progress” is curated by artist, suny binghamton alumnus (2000) and former spool mfg. board member, john ros.

“element - progress,” is a group exhibit about materials, process and the experience of making and viewing art. space acts as catalyst and participant in this exhibit as the vast galleries of spool mfg. make for an exceptional installing and viewing experience. the exhibit will feature the work of annie varnot, joel bacon, kirsten nash & nancy hubbard from new york city; jodi hays & richard feaster from nashville, tennessee; & kariann fuqua from columbus, georgia.

galleryELL, through virtual, roving, and site-specific exhibitions in unclaimed spaces, is a transient, brooklyn-based gallery comprised of active artists who look beyond daily practice by reaching out to members of their communities and to the community at large, sharing resources, ideas, and creativity through camaraderie. we see the idea of transience as part of all of us and as part of the city in which we live.

what: “element – progress”

when: exhibition runs: 9 april – 21 may 2011

gallery hours: saturdays, 12-3p and by appointment closing reception: saturday, 21 may 2011, 7-9p

where: spool mfg. | 138 baldwin street, johnson city, ny 13790

contact: john ros, artist & director, galleryELL
646.596.0409 | galleryELL@gmail.com